DNR: Flying WILD

Flying WILD deals with migratory birds – conservation and environmental awareness.

Flying WILD is a part of Project WILD.

DNR: FLYING WILD

Steps

1. Flying WILD.

www.flyingwild.org

Flying WILD has over 40 activities focused on birds. They explore conservation and environmental issues through contests, quizzes and hands-on projects. Review the table of contents to see what this program has to offer.

2. The Birding Beat.

www.flyingwild.org/guide/TheBirdingBeat.pdf

Review “The Birding Beat” activity available online. Is this something you can incorporate into your programming?

3. Gulf Oil Spill resources.

www.flyingwild.org/resources/gulfoilspillresources.htm

Review the materials for the Gulf Oil Spill resources.

4. Explore birding links.

www.flyingwild.org/resources/links.htm

Explore the extensive list of links to additional birding resources.

5. Participate in a Flying WILD workshop.

Find and participate in a Flying WILD workshop. Review all of the materials you receive free at the end of this workshop. Explore one or two activities that you can use with others.

6. Incorporating Flying WILD with Girl Scouts.

www.flyingwild.org/guide/documents/GirlScoutLinks.pdf

Look through the provided lists to see what activities you can incorporate into your Girl Scout activities.

7. Incorporating Flying WILD with Boy Scouts.

www.flyingwild.org/guide/documents/BoyScoutLinks.pdf

Look through activities to find out how to incorporate Flying WILD with Boy Scout activities.

8. Create an activity box.

Create an activity box based on the program/youth you work with to introduce adults to Flying Wild. Include instructions on how the activity works and where the adult can get their own materials if they are interested in learning more.

9. Service.

Explore how you can do a service project with a group or individually — based on Flying WILD. Plan and do your project.
